To investigate the effect of Actinobacillus actinomycetemcomitans lipopolysaccharide (AaLPS) on TNF-alpha production of murine peritoneal macrophages and the possible mechanisms. Peritoneal macrophages were isolated from BALB/c mice and cultured in the RPMI 1640 medium containing 10% FCS, and the test of cytotoxicity, the effect of AaLPS and other LPSs on TNF-alpha production were assayed by MTT colorimetric method, cytometric analysis and Western blotting. The LPS stimulation of murine peritoneal macrophages caused an increase of secretion of TNF-alpha. The AaLPS and other LPSs, including Escherichia coli LPS, Salmonella typhimurium LPS and Proteus vulgaris LPS, could stimulate the TNF-alpha release. After AaLPS treatment, the amounts of TNF-alpha and IL-1beta mRNA in the cells were increased. AaLPS can stimulate the release of TNF-alpha from murine peritoneal macrophages, and the release of TNF-alpha is associated with the increase of IL-1beta mRNA.Q: SQL Join three tables, multiple columns, pick the first non-null I have three tables that I am trying to join together with SQL.
