Easy and fast task setup Keep backups in one place Read Backup Tool is a small backup application that can be used to create backups of your most important files and folders. The tool can also be used to send them over the Internet. Furthermore, Backup Tool can be installed on a USB flash drive and can thus be used on other computers as well. Configure task Backing up your files is a simple process that doesn't require a lot of explanation. What follows, however, is a brief description of what each option can do and how it works. There are several ways to configure a backup task. First, you can do it manually by clicking the tab titled "Backup." You can then use the window to choose which files and folders to back up, and the location where they should be stored. Additionally, you can tell Backup Tool to automatically start a task. In order to do so, click on the tab labeled "Auto." From the menu on the left side, you can set a time interval, and decide whether you want to automatically back up to removable or fixed media. Third, you can use the tab labeled "Interval." You can set the time interval at which the task should run, whether it should be started manually or automatically, and in which case the media you use is irrelevant. Having set all options, click "Create" to start creating the task. Start backup Once you've created the task, you can start it by clicking on the "Start" button. The task will be stored on the media of your choice (removable or fixed). You'll need to use the "Backup Location" tab to specify the destination. Transfer to removable media You can transfer your backup to removable media (USB flash drive) by clicking on the "USB" tab. The program will automatically detect the drive, and you'll be asked to confirm the transfer. Transfer to fixed media You can also transfer your backup to fixed media (DVD). This is done by clicking on the "DVD" tab, and setting the location to the DVD-ROM drive. This article covers how to speed up your PC by making your web browser a little more efficient. There are many reasons why Internet speed should not be taken for granted. Slow Internet
