I don’t know the statistics on this, but I would guess it’s on the rise. Do you think this is related to the rise of prohormone use in Western society? Do you have any theories about why people are dying of sudden cardiac deaths? Are there any effective treatments for it? Do you think there are any possible long-term effects from this? This is a disaster for me. I’ve been with a long-time love since I was 12, and when I was 18 I became very interested in the pro-hormone/weight-gain “scene.” I remember seeing a lot of articles at age 18 about it in magazines (i.e., “Snap!,” “Zemm” etc.) and on the internet, and I was trying to educate myself. Then I was introduced to a website called “Finsrush.com.” At the time I couldn’t see any problems with it, and I was very curious about the concept. The site was a bit complicated, in that it let me download templates which allowed me to “automatically” create a web site, RSS feed, forum thread and other social media. I bought the associated “program,” and thought I was cool. When I went to buy more, they told me to sign up for their email list 09e8f5149f
