The NFL Draft is almost upon us, and it's time to take another look at the 10 best linebackers in this year's draft class. A year ago, the draft was loaded with top-shelf linebackers (Reuben Foster, Reuben Joins The Draft, Manti Te'o). This year, however, the draft is light on linebackers with only three prospects at that position. This time around, we've included two rookies in the rankings, guys that were selected on the third round or later. After Day 1, though, it's all about the quality of the remaining prospects. With that in mind, let's get into the most elite talent at the linebacker position. 10. Jordan Jones – Georgia The Ravens have been wanting to bring in a linebacker since Jimmy Smith tore his Achilles last October. The team doesn't have any holes at defensive back, and they have to start thinking about the fact that they are going to be playing a lot of football in 2020, so they're looking to shore up their linebacker corps. Jordan Jones had a forgettable rookie season. He made mistakes and didn't get the most out of his speed. In fact, I'm not really sure what a pro-style linebacker looks like anymore. He looked like a safety on Sunday Night Football. But, he has a fascinating skill set for a linebacker. Jones is one of the most athletic linebackers in the draft. He has the long striders and speed to cover tight ends and running backs. He also has the size to jam up slot receivers. I expect the Ravens will use Jones in a hybrid role this year. He'll play a lot of special teams but will also see time in the nickel and dime packages. He's a potential fit as a long-term solution for the Ravens. 9. David Long – Michigan David Long is one of the last prospects you'll find at linebacker. He was a running back at Michigan, and he's a natural pass-rusher. Long's game against Wisconsin was a perfect illustration of his skill set. Long had six tackles and three and a half tackles for loss on the day. He also sacked the quarterback three times. All of this from the edge rusher. I am a big fan of Long, and I think he'd be one of the best options for the
