* Dreamweaver: A single, extremely popular program for web page creation is Dreamweaver, and a professional web page designer can create a beautiful website for no other reason than that she's good at Dreamweaver. * Illustrator: See the "Illustrator," later in this chapter, for an intro. * InDesign: Creative types and graphic designers often use this application to create print and web work. * JPEG: This file format is the default file format for computers and digital cameras. JPEG offers excellent compression. It's the highest quality format for a computer or digital camera. JPEG is still supported by most manufacturers, and most digital cameras offer the option of using JPEG. JPEG is often compressed to enable more space on the memory card in your camera or digital camera. If you shoot a lot of pictures, try to keep them at a size that uses as little space as possible. If you're in the market for a new digital camera, you need to check whether your manufacturer offers the JPEG quality option. If it doesn't, you'll need to format your memory card to a more compressed size. (If you're interested in the Kindle for e-book reading, you can find out more in Book VII, Chapter 1.) * Mac: Macs are popular computers among graphic designers because they offer a streamlined interface and tools similar to those found in Photoshop. As with Photoshop, many Mac graphic designers prefer to work with layers, the same ones found in Photoshop. There's a lot more to get into with the other products covered in this book, but if the Mac version is what you need, it's available in the Apple Store and online at www.apple.com/shop/mac/. * PhotoShop Elements: The less expensive version of Photoshop, Elements is the choice of many graphic designers. It offers more control and commands than Photoshop, but it requires a little more user-friendliness to work efficiently. * Photoshop: See the previous bullet. * Pixlr: This simple, free, photo editor offers an easy way to edit and apply your photos or images. To edit, you simply drag and drop features on and off an image. You can resize and crop the image or replace its background. If you plan to make your own Web site and want to upload your own picture of a greeting, this is a

This tutorial will show you how to create some basic VFX effects in Photoshop, and add color to a picture. Before starting this tutorial, I would like to warn you that this video will also show some of the features and techniques of Photoshop, and might help you understand some of the basics. Step 1. Adding Light & Dark Shadows to the Photo Now we will start with a simple tutorial to create some black and white shadows. First make sure that you have the Brush tool and the Gradient tool selected. Then, press and hold CTRL + ALT + Left Click to select the gradient tool. In the Gradient tool, click the Background Color from the Top to the Bottom of the Image and you will notice that the background became black. Now right click to access the Gradient Tool Options bar. There you will see the first information of the gradient: the Angle, the Tint and the Transparency. The Angle is set to 90, so that the gradient will begin to fade from the top to the bottom. The Transparency is at the bottom, which means that there is still color after the gradient. In the Gradient Tool Options, you can also adjust the Tint. You can choose the Tint from 0 to 255. After that, you can now move the Gradient tool into the Shadow area of the image. Before going any further, press the SHIFT + ALT + End key to activate the Move tool, and Shift + Click on the end of the

gradient line so that it can be dragged to the desired position. Keep holding Shift and press the End key to copy the image. Press CTRL + SHIFT + Right Click to create a new layer. Click on the Gradient tool to apply the gradient you just drew in the previous step, and press the Backspace key to exit the Gradient tool options. Holding CTRL, choose the Shape tool to create a rectangle. Make sure that the Stroke is set to None Choose the Gradient tool again, and press SHIFT + Right Click to add a gradient. There are many Gradient presets to choose from. But for this tutorial, we will use the Gradient presets Lightness, which is exactly the color you have chosen (in the Shadows part), and the Depth, which is the color you have chosen in the Background (in the Details part). Q: Copying files to different folders based on the attribute list I have a folder with around 750,000 files. I would like to apply the list of attributes (based on the file name) and copy files from one folder to another folder. I currently use the following script, which works well for a specific part of the file name, however I want to use more than one part of the file name as well. for file in 'Result_sorted.shp' 'Demixed_sorted.shp' 'Model_sorted.shp'; do shp="$(file##*_sorted)" (echo $shp;) | xargs -n1 -I{} shp=${shp#*_sorted} shp=${shp%_sorted} shp=${shp#shp%.shp} gcp -c "$shp" "$ghp" done However this seems to only work based on the first file name, as I get files in one folder and not another. If I have the script as follows instead, for file in 'Result_sorted.shp' 'Demixed_sorted.shp' 'Model_sorted.shp'; do shp="$(file##*_sorted)" (echo $shp;) | xargs -n1 -I{} shp=${shp#*_sorted} shp=${shp%_sorted} shp=${shp#shp%.shp} gcp -c "$shp" "$ghp" done Then it copies files to the correct folders but I have a massive list of folders I have to go through for each file name (only copies one folder as well). I do have a larger bash script which deals with the whole folder, but I thought I would try and see if I could make it do what I want, but it seems like I have limited my scripting to just the file name and no folder name as I loop through. A: Run them in parallel: for file in Result_sorted.shp Demixed_sorted.shp Model_sorted.shp; do shp="$(file##*_sorted)" shp=${shp%_

.Cal.1985) (hereafter B-SYS) 9 See, e.g., Portland Cement Assoc. of Isanti County, Inc. v. Riehl, 14 Minn.L.Rev. 803, 809 (1980); Shea & Co. v. S.D. Campbell, Co., 28 Md.App. 202, 345 A.2d 76, 81 (1975). Minnesota courts state the test as whether there is either a dominant and controlling reason (the reason of the parties "as organizers, promoters, or managers") or a dominant reason (the reason of the parties "as individual members") which led the parties to enter into the partnership. See Davis, 432 N.W.2d at 548, 555; RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS Sec. 772, comment (e), at 251 (1977) 10 A partnership is " 'an association of two or more persons to carry on as co-owners of a business for profit.' " Wolf v. Kulpa, 82 Wis.2d 416, 263 N.W.2d 193, 197 (1978) (quoting 1 W. Anderson, Uniform Commercial Code Sec. 2-104:1 (1971)). While we have been unable to find an Illinois case dealing with the real estate aspects of the general partnership, the most recent pronouncement of the Illinois courts indicates that the basic substantive provisions of the Uniform Partnership Act, Ill.Rev.Stat. ch. 106 1/2, paragraphs 30, 31 and 32 (1983), apply to general partnerships. Beard v. Robinson, 33 Ill.App.3d 921, 339 N.E.2d 716, 720 (1975) 11 There is also a difference in the language of the partnership law and the Illinois securities act. The partnership law provides that the "property" of a partner includes his rights in the partnership. Ill.Rev.Stat. ch. 106 1/2, Sec. 23(1) (1983); see also Ill.Rev.Stat. ch. 106 1/2, Sec. 31 (1983) (a partnership is liable for the "acts or defaults of any partner"). The Illinois securities act, in contrast, only refers to the separate property of a partner, not his rights or his interests in the partnership. 740 Ill. Ann.Stat.
